

EXAMINE ENGAGE EXTEND

Carole Cadue-Blackwood

Facilitator for Curriculum Transformation

Carole Cadue-Blackwood is a recently elected member of the Lawrence, Kansas Board of Education and an enrolled member of the Kickapoo Tribe in Kansas. She is a recipient of the Office of Multicultural Affairs' Award for the Dr. Precious Porrás Award for Campus Advocacy and Activism and the 2018 National Indian Education Association's "Parent of the Year" Award for her advocacy efforts for the passage of Kansas House Bill 2498 or "The Regalia Bill" and leading the name change campaign for Billy Mills Middle School in Lawrence, Kansas. It is the first public school in the United States to be re-named after an American Indian.

